

Exploring the Databases:

ProQuest Nursing & Allied Health Source

ProQuest Nursing and Allied Health Source is a subject-specific database made for research in nursing and health-related fields. There are many powerful tools and search “limiters” on this page; let’s examine some that researchers will use most frequently:

The screenshot shows the ProQuest interface for the Nursing & Allied Health Source database. The 'Advanced Search' section is highlighted, showing search boxes, a dropdown menu for 'AND', and filter options. Callouts provide instructions: 'Need more search boxes? Use the '+ Add a row' button to add them!' points to the 'Add a row' button; 'Full-text limiter' points to the 'Full text' checkbox; 'Not all scholarly journals are peer reviewed. Make sure that both of these are checked if you are searching specifically for peer-reviewed articles!' points to the 'Peer reviewed' and 'Scholarly journals' checkboxes; and 'Use this to select a specific date range for your results to have been published in.' points to the 'Publication date' dropdown menu.
